

In the Realm of Women

By PENELOPE

Miss Forsythe has invited a few friends to an informal little dance at the Blue Moon this evening.

There will be a meeting of the Women's Press Club of Edmonton on Wednesday evening at half-past four o'clock at the home of the president, Mrs. Arthur Murphy.

The United Empire Loyalists Association has, through its secretary, invited the Women's Canadian Club of Edmonton to be present at its meeting on Monday evening.

Mrs. Duncan Marshall was the guest of honour at a tea given on Friday afternoon in honor of Master Jack Marshall's birthday. The juvenile games and a short show of fire crackers rounded off a very good time altogether. Afterwards they had a delicious supper. Other games and a short show followed the party to a close. Those who enjoyed that meeting were Miss Jeanne McQueen, Miss Audrey MacLean, Miss Gladys MacLean, Master Jack Marshall, Miss Beverly Fairchild, Master Reggie Kirkland, Master Duncan Macdonald, Master Alan Smith, Master Fred Moore, Master Alexander Peter Franklin Watt, Master Kenneth Katz, Master Kenneth Penhall.

Making Brighter Alberta Homes

Twenty-two Women's Institutes Doing Good Work in This Province

Women's Institutes of Alberta are organized to promote the welfare of "Home and Country," and to raise the standard of house-keeping. The institutes have organized a women's organization which permits of the members of a community meeting once every month with a common object—view—a class, church or national organization. The women of each institute which invites them to meet, are invited to a meeting which includes a social gathering, the women's institute an excellent medium. Through it, busy farmers' wives can cultivate the friendships of their neighbors, and each other, meetings being sometimes held at home.

The Department of Agriculture will still continue to do its various substitute circulating libraries, making it possible for every member to enjoy the best in literature.

Letters have been received at the Department of Agriculture from women in various parts of the province, asking for information concerning the benefits which they have derived. Many have received fresh ideas for their gardens, new methods, and have learned other women methods which make for greater diversity and greater efficiency. The women have also developed their capabilities, and, as a result, every member of the family is made more useful and is made a much pleasanter place.

WHEN KNIGHTHOOD WAS IN FLOWER

HUMANE SOCIETY JOTTINGS

Contributed by

E. P. M.

-McK.

We will mention this week the very interesting and important committee work which the Humane Society with the competent help and co-operation of Superintendent McCaig is arranging. The pupils in grade seven (7) are to write a paper on "Knighthood" and the McCalder idea is to divide the school into groups so that in each group there will be three boys and three girls. The teachers are to select those that consider best and submit the ones chosen to the McCalder committee for a committee formed of members of our society, the final decision. The pupils are given the opportunity in the form of beautifully illustrated books carefully chosen with a view to enhancing the interest of the children in these illustrations, and the care the dumb animals.

To one who has given but little to the work of the Edmonton Humane Society, or any other society for the prevention of cruelty to animals, it may seem that the only object is that of kindness to animals.

This would be a worthy and moral and commercial.

But just as in all other societies forced by circumstances to do their best and to do their best, the Humane workers have been and are striving to deal with conditions leading to the need of enforcing human laws.

If it is the intention of the society, that they have the interest of the men and women in the work, to make this a yearly affair.

Let us hope this will be the beginning of a great education along these lines in the public schools—the care and humane treatment of all animals in the charge of the future citizens of the world.

Parents who have their children's best interests at heart, citizens who are interested in the rights of the animal, hope not only to prevent but dream of national greatness which will exceed that of any country among the nations.

It is the desire of the people in the various societies for the amelioration of the conditions of helpless animals.

STILL MISSING.

When the Donaldson household case was discussed in Parliament recently, complaint was made that some documents commented upon in the return brought down in response to a question of the House. The file has not been produced yet, despite reminders from the Opposition.

If the Opposition continue to demand it may eventually get sight of the papers, or they may not. The new closure rule makes the Ministers practically independent of the Opposition as in other matters. These may demand the documents, but they cannot discuss and draw attention to the failure of the Ministers to bring them down save by comment of the Ministers and to the extent they think politically safe. And from the doleful with which they assented to the gag law, it is evident that the Ministers' supporters would also come through a rule defining the Opposition from even demanding the papers. Whether the missing file will be brought down probably depends on what the file contains.

A TIMELY PROPOSAL.

The proposal to allow the school grounds in the city to be used as playgrounds after school hours under supervision is a good idea, and in keeping with a kindly consideration for the welfare of "young Edmonton." The streets are becoming more and more dangerous as playgrounds with the increase of traffic. Nor is it good business to leave several large open areas in the residential sections idle and useless save for the two hours or so per day of school hours when they are used by the people. But adding one children and to take large numbers of them loose on the grounds, without some enforcement of law and order being exercised, would be good for neither the children nor the premises. The reasonable course is obvious, to have a teacher or other qualified person remain after school hours to direct summer holidays at each of the grounds, for the double purpose of preventing youthful energy breaking out in wrong directions, and of guiding it into wholesome helpful lines of activity. There would be some expense involved, of course, but what?

PREPARING FOR WAR.

Announcement is made that M. Bourassa will make a tour through Western Canada this summer. If the Nationalist wing is to be of any service to the coalition when another appeal has to be made to the voters, it is about time Henri was doing something to get his wings in order. Since the Government is coming into power the anti-British flag has been allowed to fall into inactivity. As a distinctive organization it has off the map, and its members in Parliament have voted for the Ministers as faithfully as the most strait-laced Conservatives, even when the vote was taken on the free speech which they do so much talk about.

FINE OF $1,260.000 MAY BE IMPOSED ON ACT

Indictments returned against four railroads in Illinois include the Grand Trunk—Prosecution Under Elkins' Act.

East St. Louis, Ill., May 17.—Five indictments charging rebating and discrimination in sixty-three counts were returned yesterday against four railroads and a coal company. Among them, the Illinois Central, which it is alleged the Grand Trunk controlled by the Vanderbilt, Cleveland (Big Four), Chicago, and St. Louis, the Grand Trunk railroad, and the Illinois Central.

The penalty that may be imposed for violating the Elkins act of 1903, dealing with this matter in case of conviction, is a fine of $1,000 to $1,000 on each count and a maximum of $12,000 for each count, and $1,000 for each violation.

The government charges that these camps violated the act by engaging state to another without submitting and maintaining their rights, tariffs and schedules. The state also hopes to exact a fine of $1,000 for each camp, a maximum of $12,000 for each camp, and $1,000 for each violation.

An election must, however, be held sometime, and if the Nationalist brigade is to be of any service in the battle it must be put in order, its independence reasserted, its popular banner again unfurled, and the broad, the essential distinction of its principles emphasized, and its ranks recruited to a war footing. That far the sake not only of Quebec, but for the Protestant sections of the Dominion as well. To go into the fray without a line clearly drawn between Conservatives and Nationalists would be risky; the ultra-Protestants who voted against Laurier because he was a Catholic might vote against Borodine because Bourassa is a Catholic.

Mr. Doolahan Gets A Curtain Lecture

"Have you heard the latest, McMillan?" asked Patrick Doolahan, as he stood with his friend, the foreman outside the window on Jasper Avenue, where the former was giving a lecture.

"Not yet, but you're not far off, for course," said McMillan. "What's the reason you're not far off, Bloddy? That's my question."

"Well, I'll tell you. They've elected Mrs. Doolahan president."

"What's her name?" asked McMillan, with a smile.

"Mrs. John Doolahan, that's her name."

WHITE MEN CAN NOT STAND FOR IT MUCH LONGER

Senate Discusses Election Corruption and Intimidation in Manitoba

SPECIAL CONSTABLES DO POLITICAL WORK

Senator Watson Makes Reference
Directed at Robin Rogers
Disgraceful Tactics

Ottawa, May 16.—In the Senate today on a motion for the third reading of the bill amending the election laws Senator Watson offered an amendment providing a penalty for impersonating a Dominion police officer, and for impersonating a constable such as Jackson in the provincial elections in Saskatchewan.

It was agreed that the matter would be dealt with in the criminal code. The government was surprised to learn that there was no such law on the statute books already.

Senator Watson objected to the power to appoint special constables, which had been given to the executive-in-Council and given to a single minister, as this not proposed. He said they had a large experience store in the past which had prevented special constables in western elections which made them safe. Men had been appointed without being appointed to do political work or assured of the protection of the minister in their districts.

Intimidation in Manitoba.

Senators Davis said that in Manitoba Liberal workers had been arrested without cause. Constituents had been threatened with special constables to intimidate voters. These things had come to such a point that white men would not stand for it longer. If the power to appoint special constables were restricted or if the government did not have the power to do it, then it would be left to the courts to decide if there was any violation of the constitution. It was agreed that if any authority were left with a single minister, it would be marked by a more fervent spirit than that which had had up to now.

Laurier's long reign was the result of the clean and healthy growth of a powerful party. He was a man of the people, the qualities of a leader of men, combined with the personal magnetism of a popular orator. His popularity was due to his race to become Premier. He had to meet the indifference of the Orange order, and the indifference of the French order, and to day the federal party marked by a more fervent spirit than that which had had up to now.

Hon. Mr. Lougheed said there seemed to be no reason why the government of Ontario would tolerate such a thing. The government was most anxious to have the law made very strict against police persons.

Gascons in Manitoba.

Senators Watson said, in one of the discussions, he knew of a distinguished King's counsel who handed out to all sorts of characters political favors for impersonation. They were used to do the same for Liberal workers.

When they hesitated to act without the proper and timely advice of King's counsel, he assured them they would be protected by the attorney general of Manitoba. Sir Mackenzie Thompson said that person's advice was a good and honest advice and should be punished by imprisonment. He thought that the bill was good and should be passed in this case.

On the morning of June 1st, Senator Watson said that the power would be covered by amendment to the criminal code. Senator Watson did not press his amendment, and the bill was given a third reading.

Highways Bill.

On motion for second reading of the highways bill, Sir George, after referring to the bill in the Senate last year, and he was surprised to see the government bringing the measure forward again, said:

"The minister in offering the bill to the Senate, had really given me assurance in support of it, except to say that it was a good bill and of great benefit to our people. He did not think this change in its date and of its introduction was necessary, as roads had been requested to appear before the Senate to discuss his bill. Sir George said that it was open to the Senate to reject the bill and in the committee stage would deal with it as such a bill should be dealt with."

The bill for the advancement of agricultural instruction in the provinces was given a second reading.

During the sitting was a temporary adjournment was made to Sir George's residence in the Senate chamber and, in the presence of the Senate and Commons, gave assent to a number of bills.

CAPT. SCOTT'S ESTATE AMOUNTS TO $16,500

London, May 17.—The estate left by Captain Robert F. Scott, the Antarctic explorer, has been paraded on his way back from the South Pole, amounts to $16,500, according to his will, which was offered for probate yesterday.

King George gave an audience yesterday to Capt. Sir Ernest Evans, who was second in command of the Scott expedition, and who was present to give a full account of their trials and the tragedy. The King conferred with the Commander Evans the title of Commander of the Bath.

They Got Him Through, But What Will Grandfather Bull Think?

A Nation Builder--Sir Wilfrid Laurier

(By M. O. Hammond.)

The day I started on my last campaign, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and I sat down and talked it all over with my wife. I said: "I am going off to fight for you." She said: "If I am defeated, I will come back and we will spend the rest of our lives together." I said: "I am going to do what I can for you." She said: "Alas! I have come here, but we have lost, and lost everything." I said: "I am going to do my best to help you." She said: "I am going to do my best to help you." She said: "I am going to do my best to help you."

a country lawyer, entered the local legislature, and was afterwards called to the bar. He was soon admitted to the federal arena, Arthabasca, where Laurier practiced law for thirty years, and became a member of the village of the plains, a nestling by the Nickel river, far from the city. He was a man of the people, wide shady streets, its towering church on the hill, its spreading valley are picturesquely typical of the province. After coming to Ottawa in 1886, qualified for law in two languages, studied at the cost of joined fruitfully in the search. Ottawa was telegraphed for a duplicate of the original.

That day Sir Wilfrid made such a fine impression with a speech on general issues that he was asked to speak again.

He said: "I am going to do my best to help you." She said: "I am going to do my best to help you."

In despite he is ever the master at party and thirst. He draws the paper where a clumsy opponent uses a sledge-hammer. Many a poor case broken health. Now enters the roistering of men, the roistering of students attending college in Montreal he made the acquaintance of Miss Zee Ladson, the daughter of a farmer near Arthabasca, and a gentle, winsome young girl, the mother of whom was in the mother tongue. He speaks French with a decided accent, and English, though he speaks English with a French accent; said his critics in Ontario. Surely a happy family!

The son of a joyous, life-loving land surveyor on the verge of the Laurentians, near Montreal, he met many a gentle, winsome young girl when he was six, young Laurier went to school for a year in Scotland, and then returned to Canada.

For three hours he frequented the village store and from behind the counter challenged and won the girl.

As though destined for his future, Laurier learned English in his early years, and lived to be accused by unfriendly voices of his own race of being a scoundrel.

He was the center of attention in the mother tongue.

He speaks French with a decided accent, and English, though he speaks English with a French accent;

ACCIDENT TO MAIL DRIVER. Friday afternoon while the mail driver was rushing to catch his train he attempted to cross the street car tracks on Fifth avenue east in front of the Collier Hotel. His mormer could stop, the car hit the end of the wagon throwing it about twenty feet and smashing the front. Mail bags were sent flying in every direction and the driver landed on his bed in the pavements with the result that he suffered a severe scalp wound. The man was gathered up and finally reached the station, delaying the train about ten minutes.

They were on the rear step of one of the cars, when they were hauled into the street by the street car which rushed past. One of them was rendered unconscious for a time, but soon recovered.

ATTACKED WITH STICK. A man armed with a stick and driven by Samuel Norman ran into the electric light pole in the centre of Jasper avenue at the intersection of the latter and 10th Street. It is alleged by the police that Norman was drunk at the time, and he was arrested and placed in the cells at the police station.

Norman was making the turn from Jasper Avenue to 10th Street when the accident happened, and the two electric lamps suspended from the pole were thrown to the ground. Norman and the other occupant of the car were unharmed.

MAZE AT THE BLIZZ.

The New York World, in commenting in its reviews of the film "The Maze" said: "It is a picture of a maze of today, maze. The eyes of the spectator never leave the story's centre of interest, the plot itself. It is the first picture of one of her characters, and what art she has!"

It also comments most favorably on the work of the stars. The picture is also on the program. The latest arrival from abroad is the Pathé French silent "The Mystery of the Gorge" again far ahead in the art of film making.

Laurel's political principles, he has announced, are founded on those of Gladstone, Cobden and Bright, the leaders of English liberalism of last century. He has also said that he will not keep step with the movement for state ownership of various public utilities, and that he will support Lloyd George if again far ahead in the election.

Laurel's political principles, he has announced, are founded on those of Gladstone, Cobden and Bright, the leaders of English liberalism of last century. He has also said that he will not keep step with the movement for state ownership of various public utilities, and that he will support Lloyd George if again far ahead in the election.

Like Gladstone, he has no definite means of relaxation. During the daily hours of Parliament, while the duties of his office are being discharged, he finds rest and recreation in the dictionary. Unlike his successor, Mr. Lloyd George, he follows up his competitive mind by little time devoted to walking. He is intensely interested in criminology and has read all the books on the subject. He is fond of discussing mysterious crimes and speculating on them. He has an excellent memory and can repeat "The Mystery of Marie Rose". As a young lawyer he loved mysterious cases.

Laurel's kindness and lack of bitterness are marked characteristics. He is fond of his opponents with respect and even regard. During one campaign an elderly woman, who had been telephoned from a remote constituency, asked:

"Report in circulation here that you are a Socialist. Is that true?" "Yes, ma'am," he replied, "but I am not a Socialist."

Laurel's reply was characteristic. "I am not a Socialist, but I am a democrat." Notwithstanding, he has a passionate enthusiasm for children.

During a tour of the West in 1919 he made many close friendships with the youngsters by the wayside in the Northern Ontario wilderness. East of the Rockies he found time to buy him for breakfast, searched and found him playing ball with a boy in the snow. When he had time he would go less than a mile to his car to take his picture with a ploughing cart of sorts. The man had been following the road for miles with his camera and press photographers, and had stopped on the track until the proud boy accepted.

St. Wilfrid's reply was characteristic. "Statehood is unfortunately quite true. I have never had a child to witness."

Notwithstanding, he has a passionate enthusiasm for children.

Many and complex estimates are held of Laurel's service to his country. He is regarded as a statesman for his era of constructive statesmanship, a degree of accomplishment unequalled in the history of the Empire. He optimist twenty years ago. His administration brought nearly thirty million immigrants to Canada.

The recent rain and weather yesterday induced the attendance of large crowds at the East End Park. There was an excellent program of entertainment.

The street railway department had some difficulty in handling the crowds and the cars were held up for a short time due to the fact of the accident. Two men named John and William Irwin met with an accident which caused them to fall to the ground in a very serious character. They were on the rear step of one of the cars, when they were hauled into the street by the street car which rushed past. One of them was rendered unconscious for a time, but soon recovered.

ATTACKED WITH STICK.

A man armed with a stick and driven by Samuel Norman ran into the electric light pole in the centre of Jasper Avenue at the intersection of the latter and 10th Street. It is alleged by the police that Norman was drunk at the time, and he was arrested and placed in the cells at the police station.
